Dear Harry Johnson:

Thank you for your fine letter and for your good wishes on my victory.

You can be a good runner, I know. Your coach will help you as you go along.

Greece is a fine subject for study. Congratulations to your class.

Dear Lee Mestres:

Thank you for your fine letter. You can be a great athlete. It only requires constant training.

I wish I could be here to see your Greek play.

Thank you for your good wishes.

Dear Peter DeFoe:

Thank you for your good wishes. It was worth traveling 5,000 miles and 5,000 more back to my country for your famous American Marathon Race. It was a great prize to win. I am glad I was the lucky one.

The study of Greece is an excellent subject which will give you rich imagination and great resourcefulness when you grow up.

That's correct: I ran about 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles per hour.

Your class was mighty fine to want to help Greece in such a nice way as you are doing. I want to thank each and everyone of you from the bottom of my heart.

Dear John Sewall:

I was glad to get your letter.

I was in the German Olympic Games and finished eleventh in the Marathon. I hope to do better in the next Olympic Games in London in 1948.

Your friend,
