GREEK MARATHONER SEEKS SECOND WIN

Stylianios Kyriakides, right, who will attempt to repeat last year's Marathon victory on April 19, points out headlines in Greek newspaper announcing President Truman's recent address on Greek loan. He bought the newspaper before boarding plane for Boston. At left is TWA Hostess Agnes Fitzmorris.

Stylianios Kyriakides, the fleet-footed Greek who was victor of the 1946 Marathon arrived here last night by overseas plane from Athens and on landing at Logan International Airport expressed the hope of repeating his magnificent triumph of last Patriot's Day when, as the laurel was placed on him brow, modestly disclaimed glory for any personal achievement but with fiery patriotism cried that he had only run and won for the honor of his native land and to bring some cheer and inspire confidence in the hearts of his unhappy countrymen.
