EUROPEAN DOCUMENTATION CENTERS (EDCs)

- EDC network is one of the Information Networks that come under the EU information service – Europe Direct.
- Established on 1963.
- Before 2001 they belonged to the Directorate-General (DG) of Education.
- 2001: They are subjected to the General Directorate on Communication in order to comply with the commitments of the Treaties of Maastricht and Amsterdam to disseminate the European information to citizens.
- 2004: under the auspices of a wider European information network called “EUROPE DIRECT.”
EUROPEAN DOCUMENTATION CENTERS (EDCs)

- Mission: the support of educational process and research on European issues, especially on European integration.

- Each host structure signs up a framework agreement and contract with EC.

- EDCs are host in Universities and Research Centers.

- They consist a department of the libraries, in the most of the cases.
Legislative framework and Operational goals

According to their agreement, EDCs must respond to the following goals:

1. Educational goal: support host structure to promote and integrate the teaching and research activities on the European integration.

2. Operational goal: make the European information and policies accessible.

3. Communicative goal: participate to the discussion about European Union, in cooperation to other centers of the European information dissemination.
Legislative and Operational framework
European Commission Commitment

- Free subscription to the official publications in print and electronic form,
- Today the most of resources are electronic and the open access is offered,
- Networking and training support,
- Annual evaluation and assessment of their procedures and activities.

- EC Representations are responsible for establishing new Centers and keeping a well-functioning Network.
Legislative and Operational framework
host structure Commitment

The host structure is responsible for:

- The human resources of EDC.
  - A specialist in documentation and information and
  - a faculty member as scientific supervisor.
  - They both manage the EDC processes.

- Separate space, preferably in library.

- Facilities for the effective operation, promotion and publicity within and outside the body.

The European Union Information: Labyrinth

Problems on Information access

- There is a great volume of European Information in daily basis,
- Information produced by the European Institutions,
- There is great difficulty for the media and citizens to distinguish the trivial from the significant facts,
- The press officers of institutions offer to journalists large and organized Press Releases,
- Web Services.
EDCs: Communication and Networking

EDCs supported by European Commission, the Representatives of the Commission in countries and the host structures have enhanced their activities in national and European level. The cooperation is achieved by:

- Annual network meetings at national and European level
- Training seminars and visits to EU institutions
- Mailing lists and discussion groups, Eurodoc discussion list http://eurodoc.jiscmail.ac.uk
EDCs: Communication and Networking

- Pan-European Working Groups and exchange programmes
- Common WebPages and information tools
- Joint organization of training, information & promotion activities
- Exchange information, share good practices and expert knowledge.
Cooperative Tools and Services of EDCs

- Draw, develop, apply new information and communication tools with (inter)national cooperation of Centers, for example
  - websites, repositories, databases, reference services, portals.
- Traditional EDCs services enriched with modern, cooperative electronic services.
- Best practices in serving users and providing European information.

Cooperative services: MITOS

- Electronic System of Questions and Answers on European subjects.
- Created by Athens University of Economics and Business EDC when it was coordinator,
- It is an online service which accepts the questions of the academic community and the public, answer them and catalogue both.
- A database is created containing the questions and their answers.
- The questions are about european policies, legislation, projects.
- Importance of the DB: the references and the documentation is retrieved only once for every subject.
Cooperative services: MITOS

How it works:

- The information specialists /documentalists of the Greek EDC network receive the question and classify them according to the polyglot thesaurus of the system.
- Depending on the difficulty of the subject, they retrieve to:
  - The catalogue and databases of the EDCs
  - The portals,
  - The repositories,
  - International databases of European interest.
- The search result that is printed and electronic information resources are recorded in an answer form and forwarded to the user.
European Repository of Greek EDCs hosted at the University of Piraeus Library, http://digilib.lib.unipi.gr/ket/?

- Contains digital or digitized documents, works, texts of (and on) the European Union,
- Main Advantage: The repository integrates authors, kinds of documents, subjects, organizations, DataBases, e.g. Theses, Council Decisions, the Results of a Consultation, Scientific Articles etc. under the same subject.
- Value-added service.

Conclusions

The challenges for the EDCs’ work on the 21st century

- Social Media
- E-books
- European Cooperative Repositories

are the 3 main keystones that European Commission sets as future challenges to EDCs just in the anniversary of 50 years.

European Documentation Centers are required to:

- meet the challenges of 21st century technology,
- exploit the tools of networking and information,
- continue their qualitative modern services to academic and research community.

And they are ready to do them, despite the lack of human and economic resources.
