

The Sports Museum of New England is proud to present the exhibition STYLIANOS KYRIAKIDES...RUNNING FOR THE HUMAN RACE. No athlete better embodies the true spirit of marathoning and friendship between Athens and Boston than this heroic Greek.

The exhibition puts The Sports Museum of New England on the international stage for the first time. I am especially grateful to the Kyriakides family for their generosity and to Irene Bailey, Director of Cultural Affairs and John S. Bailey, President of the American College of Greece, for their gracious offer to host the exhibition in Athens.

Thanks must also go to our exhibit sponsor Atlantic Bank, The FleetCenter, New Balance, as well Susan Julian Gates, Andy Dabilis, Harry Demeter, and Nick Tsiotos.

The museum is committed to using sports to teach the values of leadership, respect and cooperation. This exhibit is a tribute to an athlete who was one of the finest examples of these values. He was Greek, but his story is also part of the international heritage of marathoners everywhere. It is our hope that by keeping alive the story of this great athlete, champion, and humanitarian that The Sports Museum of New England will forge further links between Greece, America and the world marathoning community.
